

STOCK MONKEY

(alpha)

Okay so this is very simple currently. It was moreso to find out how hard it would be to get floor-time-fast stock info from the internet and make a noise when a change is detected within 1 second. So that's all it does right now.

HOWEVER, right now there is a limit to how long you can do this for. I found out myself that it's around 30-60 minutes straight. Don't worry; there are tons of ways to fix this and my current challenge is deciding which method would be best.

It may "crash" (more like close) and when that happens, wait about 1-3 hours (I ran some errands) and return, and it will work again.

next page is faq & social media